Contributors' Notes

Editorial Board

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.law.yale.edu/yjlh
Part of the History Commons, and the Law Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: http://digitalcommons.law.yale.edu/yjlh/vol2/iss2/1

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by Yale Law School Legal Scholarship Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in Yale Journal of Law & the Humanities by an authorized administrator of Yale Law School Legal Scholarship Repository. For more information, please contact julian.aiken@yale.edu.
Contributors' Notes

Thomas C. Grey is Professor of Law at Stanford; he has published numerous articles on constitutional law and jurisprudence, and is the author of a forthcoming book on Wallace Stevens and another on Justice Holmes.

Margaret Jane Radin is Professor of Law at Stanford Law School, and formerly Carolyn Craig Franklin Professor of Law at the University of Southern California Law Center. She teaches and writes in the fields of jurisprudence and property.

Drucilla Cornell is Professor of Law at Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law.

J.M. Balkin is Professor of Law, and Graves, Dougherty, Hearon & Moody Centennial Faculty Fellow at the University of Texas.

Austin Sarat is William Nelson Cromwell Professor of Jurisprudence & Political Science at Amherst College. He currently is co-chair of Amherst’s Program in Law, Jurisprudence & Social Thought. He holds both a Ph.D. (Wisconsin, 1973) and a J.D. (Yale, 1988), and is collaborating on a book about the construction of legal ideology and legal identity in lawyer/client interaction.

Allen D. Boyer (B.A. Vanderbilt University, J.D. University of Virginia, Ph.D. University of St. Andrews) is a special counsel in the Enforcement Division of the New York Stock Exchange. He has published in the corporate and law-and-humanities areas, and is currently at work on a study of the evolution of the financial markets. Opinions expressed in the article are those of the author and are not necessarily those of the New York Stock Exchange.