The Yale Journal on Regulation, published semi-annually in January and June, is dedicated to fostering scholarship and debate on current issues of regulatory policy. Each issue contains new ideas, proposals and analyses covering a variety of topics. We are joint sponsors of an Environmental Symposium to be held in the Spring of 1989. In addition, recent articles of interest include:

- James J. Florio on Congressional regulation of hazardous waste;
- Ralph Cavanagh on energy conservation and responsible power marketing;
- Howard Latin on the choice of risk assessment techniques employed in the regulation of toxic substances;
- Robert Hahn and Gordon Hester on the EPA's emissions trading program.
