January 1994

Contributors' Notes

Editorial Board

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.law.yale.edu/yjlh

Part of the History Commons, and the Law Commons

Recommended Citation
Editorial Board, Contributors' Notes, 6 Yale J.L. & Human. (1994).
Available at: https://digitalcommons.law.yale.edu/yjlh/vol6/iss1/1

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by Yale Law School Legal Scholarship Repository. It has been accepted for inclusion in Yale Journal of Law & the Humanities by an authorized editor of Yale Law School Legal Scholarship Repository. For more information, please contact julian.aiken@yale.edu.
Contributors’ Notes

G. Edward White is University Professor and John B. Minor Professor of Law and History at the University of Virginia. His most recent publications are Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes: Law and the Inner Self (New York: Oxford University Press, 1983), and Intervention and Detachment: Essays in Legal History and Jurisprudence (New York: Oxford University Press, 1994).

Robert A. Ferguson is George Edward Woodberry Professor in the Department of English and the Law School at Columbia University.

Peter Brooks is Chairman of the Department of Comparative Literature, Yale University. His most recent books are Body Work (Harvard University Press, 1993) and Psychoanalysis and Storytelling (Basil Blackwell, 1994).

Franco Ferrari received a Dr. iur from the University of Bologna in 1990 and a Master of Laws degree from Augsburg University in 1992. He is an instructor of Italian Private Law at Augsburg University and a Visiting Professor of Comparative Law at Golden Gate University School of Law.

Vita Fortunati is Professor of English at the University of Bologna, where she is also serving as Chair of the Modern Languages Department. She is the author of a volume on Ford’s narrative technique, Ford Madox Ford: Teoria e tecnica narrativa (1975), and one on utopian literature, Le letterature utopica inglese (1979). She has published several articles on utopian literature, women’s writing, and literary theory. She has recently co-edited two books on utopian literature, Paesi di cuccagna e mondi alla rovescia (1989) and Per una definizione dell’utopia: metodologie e discipline a confronto (1992). Her study of Orwell’s dystopia has appeared in George Orwell’s 1984 (1987).
Geoffrey H. Hartman is Karl Young Professor of English and Comparative Literature at Yale University.

Giuseppe Mazzotta is the Chairman of the Yale University Italian Department. His latest book is The Worlds of Petrarch (Duke University Press, 1993).

David Bromwich is Professor of English at Yale University and the author of A Choice of Inheritance and other books on literature and politics.

Paul H. Fry is William Lampson Professor of English at Yale University. He is the author of The Poet’s Calling in the English Ode, The Reach of Criticism, William Empson: Prophet Against Sacrifice, A Defense of Poetry (forthcoming), and numerous articles on British Romanticism, the history of criticism, and literary theory.

Paolo Valesio—Professor of Italian Language and Literature at Yale University—conducts two systematically parallel activities: that of literary theoretician and critic, and that of creative writer. His publications include four books of literary criticism, six collections of poetry, two novels, and a volume of short stories. His dramatic poem in nine scenes “Son of Man at Corcovado” was performed last summer in the town of San Miniato near Florence. Valesio has won two poetry prizes in Italy and one prize for literary criticism in the United States. He has been a Guggenheim Fellow, and he is the American correspondent of the Italian monthly magazine Poesia.

Robert W. Gordon is Adelbert H. Sweet Professor of Law at Stanford University.

Thomas J. Sugrue is Assistant Professor of History at the University of Pennsylvania and former research fellow at the Brookings Institution. Educated at Columbia College, Cambridge, and Harvard, he is finishing a book, The Origins of the Urban Crisis, and is working on a study of the transformation of working- and middle-class liberalism from the New Deal to the 1960s.

Carl Landauer, an attorney at Heller, Ehrman, White & McAuliffe in San Francisco, has taught European history at Yale, Stanford, and McGill and has written on a variety of topics in the history of the humanities and the history of law.