The Fair Housing Act After Twenty Years

A Conference at the Yale Law School
March 25 and 26, 1988

Editor's Note

The following pages contain selected remarks from the conference, The Fair Housing Act After Twenty Years, held at the Yale Law School on March 25 and 26, 1988.

The four lead panelists were asked to prepare informal papers in advance of the conference and were given the opportunity to revise and extend their conference presentations for publication. Professor Days' introductory remarks and Dr. Flemming's keynote address were not prepared in advance of the conference and are reprinted in substantially the form in which they were delivered, with a few additional footnotes added for identification purposes.

The editors wish to acknowledge with special thanks the efforts of the members of the conference coordinating committee: Sharon T. Bradford, Cornell William Brooks, Nancy Field, Rob Griffen, Ginger L. Levy, Valerie Pels, Michael A. Schwartz, and Lucia Ann Silecchia.
